Economics and Mathematics at Drexel University

TOP CO-OP EMPLOYERS

Goldman Sachs
Lenovo
PECO
Relationship Velocity

MEDIAN CO-OP HOURLY PAY

$21.19

Median co-op hourly pay, School of Economics' Class of 2024

AVERAGE STARTING SALARY

$89,364

Average starting salary, School of Economics' Class of 2024

Drexel University's STEM-designated Bachelor of Science in Economics and Mathematics, housed in the School of Economics at the LeBow College of Business, combines economic theory with rigorous mathematical training, providing you with the tools to model complex problems and evaluate trade-offs. In addition to economics coursework, you'll complete extensive study in mathematics, statistics and quantitative methods.

Coursework Examples

- Differential Equations
- Linear Algebra
- Macroeconomics
- Mathematical Economics
- Mathematical Reasoning
- Microeconomics
- Time Series Econometrics
- Multivariate Calculus

Career Outlook

The BS in Economics and Mathematics will prepare you for a range of careers across the public and private sectors, with the ability to fulfill roles in economic analysis, risk and marketing analysis, policy evalution and more. This program will also provide you with strong preparetion for graduate study.

More Ways to Study Economics

- BS in Behavioral Economics, Business and Organizations
- BS in Economics and Business
- BS in Economics and Data Science
- BS in Economics
- BA in Economics
- BA in Philosophy, Politics and Economics
- Minor in Economics
- Minor in Behavioral Economics and Business
- Minor in Econometrics and Data Analytics

Learn more about this program by scanning the QR code or visiting lebow.drexel.edu/academics/undergraduate

Version no. 261026-01

LEBOW.DREXEL.EDU

Caitlin Brady, Director, Undergraduate Programs & Recruitment
215.571.3570 | cem398@drexel.edu

DREXEL UNIVERSITY
LeBow
College of Business