The BSBA in Entrepreneurship, housed in the Charles D. Close School of Entrepreneurship at Drexel's LeBow College of Business, prepares you to design, test, launch and scale new ventures and innovation initiatives in uncertain, fast-changing environments. Learn how to move from ideas to action, combining entrepreneurial judgment with disciplined analysis, evidence-based decision-making and ethical responsibility. Through applied coursework, venture-focused experiences and engagement with entrepreneurs and industry leaders, you'll develop the skills needed to evaluate opportunities, execute ideas and drive innovation.

Degree Options

- BS in Business Administration — Major in Entrepreneurship

Coursework Examples

- Leading Startups
- Startup Due Diligence Analysis
- Building Entrepreneurial Teams
- Scaling Entrepreneurial Ventures
- Innovation in Established Companies

Career Outlook

An entrepreneurship major will prepare you to create value in many different settings, whether you're launching your own venture, helping a startup grow or leading innovation within an established organization. Develop the ability to identify opportunities, solve complex business problems and turn ideas into action across industries, with career paths such as a founder, venture operator, product manager or business consultant.
