

Global Interdependence Center

38th Annual Monetary and Trade Conference: Monetary Policy Interventions in the Covid-era: Implications and Consequences

DAVID BLANCHFLOWER
Professor of Economics,
Dartmouth College &
College of Central Bankers Fellow

MICHAEL GAPEN
Managing Director &
Head of US Economics
Research, Barclays

MICKEY LEVY
Chief Economist,
Berenberg Capital
Markets LLC

MARK ZANDI
Chief Economist,
Moody's Analytics

Moderated By:

GEORGE TSETSEKOS, PH.D
GIC Secretary, Dean Emeritus and Francis Professor of Finance at LeBow's College of Business, Drexel University

Conference Co-Chairs:

Peter A. Gold, Esq., GIC Vice Chair, College of Central Bankers, and Founder and President of TheGoldGroup, LLC

Michael G. Papaioannou, Expert Advisor, International Monetary Fund

George Tsetsekos, Ph.D., GIC Secretary, Dean Emeritus and Francis Professor of Finance at LeBow's College of Business, Drexel University

ABOUT THE BRIEFING

In the first half of the year, the pandemic delivered the most severe blow to the US economy since the Great Depression. The collapse of GDP at a 32% annual rate in the second quarter, and the loss of more than 22 million jobs in March and April, were mitigated by a fiscal stimulus and monetary expansion. This conference will serve as a forum to discuss implications and consequences of the Federal Reserve monetary intervention. Special attention will be placed on the potential of future inflation and expectations for further accommodating policies by the Federal Reserve.

PLEASE JOIN US

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 19, 2020 | 3:00 - 5:00 P.M. EDT

Please click here for complimentary registration.

COVID-19 pandemic resources and replays of this series are available at: www.interdependence.org.